Give a summary without spoilers!

The half brothers Nathan and Lucas Scott shift between a rivalry and a friendship both on the highschool basketball court as well as to their relationships with family, friends, and significant others. This show follows the lives of these highschool students in a small town: Tree Hill, in North Carolina, through their lives in the real world.

What drew you to this television show?

The characters and the writing was really what drew me to and helped me stay with this addictive media. The relationship these kids create is so interesting and relatable as a high school student. For a TV show with no supernatural aspects, this show does get extremely crazy and idealistic from time to time.

Did it remind you of something that you've previously watched or read?

One Tree Hill could be compared to Dawson Creek, the OC, Friday Night Lights, and other teen dramas.

To whom would you recommend this television show?

I would recommend this media to a person with a maturity level of around high school and later. However, as this series continues into adulthood, a person of any age all the way up to late adulthood can enjoy and relate to this show.

Overall, did you like it and would you recommend it to others?

This is one of my absolute favorite shows, and I do believe it is slightly under the radar, or underrated. I would 100% recommend it.
