Give a summary without spoilers!

Zelda loves improv comedy, it's her whole life. She lands a coveted spot on the Varsity team at the prestigious improv camp. When practice starts however, she quickly learns that being the only girl on a supposedly all-male team comes with a heavyweight on her shoulders. All the girls in the camp are counting on her to succeed on behalf of all of them. However, the people she is working with don't respect her, especially her coach. Speaking of her coach, a twenty-year-old improve kid named Ben, he's been a little different to her when they are alone. A little flirtatious, which is not what Zelda is used to. Ben's interest begins to seem chilling and Zelda wants to fight back but doesn't know how.

What drew you to this book?

I've never read anything about improv comedy and especially a girl lead in that area so it was intriguing to see that plot.

Did it remind you of something that you've previously read?

This book did not remind me of any other book I've read in the past. But it was very interesting.

To whom would you recommend this book?

I would recommend this book to someone who likes women empowerment and comedy.

Overall, did you like it and would you recommend it to others?

I liked the book but it wasn't my cup of tea. That being said I would not recommend the book because I didn't enjoy it as much as it was intended to.

Anything else that you would like to add to this review? What made you choose it? Did you like the cover? Was it recommended to you? Did you find it at the library?

I really like the cover of the book. I found this book in the library in the YA section.
