In this book the reader will meet Harry Potter. A boy rejected by his relatives whom he lives with. He was told that his parents died in a car crash when he was little, but soon he was going to find out that it was all a lie. Ever since he was young, he could make special things happen when he felt a strong emotion. He could make things break if he was mad, plants wilted when he was sad, he could talk to snakes, etc.. These things made his family reject him so much to the point that he didn't even have an actual room in his house, he just lived in a cupboard under the stairs. One specific day his aunt and uncle were very frightened, and they took Harry and his cousin to a remote location off the coast of an ocean. Throughout the car ride they kept letting out subtle hints that someone was chasing them, but Harry wasn't sure what was going on. Finally, when they reached their destination they relaxed, but someone knocked on the door. His aunt and uncle didn't open it, so the door flew open, and a giant human walked in. He looked around and saw Harry. He gives him a birthday cake, and an invitation to a special school, where only specific people can go. The adventure he begins from there leads him down a path to make friends and enemies, but will he survive to come back to his house next summer?

What drew you to this book?

This is a really popular book and almost everyone you meet will know what book this is. When I read it for the first time I thought it was really good. The setting and plot also really interested me, since the mystery in the book perfectly lines up with the plot.

Did it remind you of something that you've previously read?

This was a completely unique book when I read it, but it made me think of superhero comics.

To whom would you recommend this book?

I would recommend this book to anyone who enjoys a long, good read because this book definitely isn't short. I would also recommend this to anyone who likes mysteries and fantasy adventures.

Overall, did you like it and would you recommend it to others?

I really love this book and it is one of my favorites to this day. I would definitely recommend this to others.

Anything else that you would like to add to this review? What made you choose it? Did you like the cover? Was it recommended to you? Did you find it at the library?

The cover at first doesn't make sense, but after you read the book you realize that it perfectly matches the main character's personality. This book was recommended to me by a number of peers, and I was able to find it at this library.
