Mateo Torrez and Rufus Emeterio receive a call from Death-Cast on September 5 just after midnight to inform them that they will pass away today. Although Mateo and Rufus are complete strangers, they both want to make new friends on their “End Day” for various reasons. There is an app for that called Last Friend, which is fantastic news. Rufus and Mateo are going to get together for one final big adventure—to live a lifetime in a single day.

What drew you to this book?

I was drawn to this book because of the captivating storyline and how the characters' relationships were portrayed throughout the novel.

Did it remind you of something that you've previously read?

This book didn't remind me of anything specifically, but it was uniquely written by portraying the complex relationships of the characters and how they would spend their last day "living life to the fullest" before they died.

To whom would you recommend this book?

I would recommend this book to anyone who likes to read young adult fiction novels with a lot of adventure. The characters' relationships and backstories made it a great read.

Overall, did you like it and would you recommend it to others?

I did like this book, and I would definitely recommend it to others because it is great for anyone who wants to start reading or for anyone who likes to read fiction adventure novels.

Anything else that you would like to add to this review? What made you choose it? Did you like the cover? Was it recommended to you? Did you find it at the library?

The cover of this book seemed very interesting to me, which made me want to read it.
